LEO Writers' Picks

3) Best Buffet I Can't Eat: Maracas (soon to be called Cactus Jack's) in Jeffersonville. A Mexican buffet? It must be heaven, I said to myself and dove right in. Two hours later I

Staff Writer

4) Louisville's Best Venue: The LAVA House's radical art parties and performances. Hands down the best time in Louisville.

... and put it on one o' these Muckrakers. Yeah.

2) Best Appetizer Besides the Dundee Dip: Kate's Stuffed Mushrooms at Rich O's Public House. I've never had stuffed mushrooms like these before — and my mouth is watering just thinking about them. They're not fried and they're not served with horseradish sauce/dip, like most versions of stuffed mushrooms. They're baked so perfectly — with browning mozzarella cheese on top and warm cheese/mushroom juices throughout. You won't be disappointed.

order of mashed potatoes and gravy and some Chili Cheese Twig Tators. Burp.

5) Best Band I'd Like to Hook Up With if They Weren't All Married: (tie) The Velcro Pygmies and The Muckrakers. Have you seen them in action? How cute are they? But they're (mostly) married — so we'll just have to watch from afar.

granted, and when it catches you sleeping with a lake, the river will slap you and move back to its mother's house.

5) Strip clubs? Downtown's got 'em.

Film Efficienado

1) Louisville's Best Kept Cinematic Secret: The Film Liberation Unit through the University of Louisville is a first-rate cinematic institution. And all of its films are absolutely free.

2) Louisville's Worst Kept Political Secret: The Establishment is desperate. On Nov. 4, we had a new wave of Jim Crow-ism and a conveniently scheduled terrorism drill.

3) Louisville's Best 5 Square Feet of Music: ear X-tacy has the most comprehensive selection of music, but Underground Sounds has the feel of going through your older brother's albums. The reggae section is the best few feet of riddims and dub plates in town.

4) Louisville's Best Venue: The LAVA House's radical art parties and performances. Hands down the best time in Louisville.

5) Louisville's Most Disturbing Publishing Trend: The 'Ville (previous winner, that gun-hocking rag Snitch).
